Saronic & Argolic Gulf / Eastern Peloponnese

The Saronic Gulf is the most famous sailing and charter area in Greece due to its proximity to Athens (southwest of Athens). Following the Saronic trail to Aegina, Hydra, Poros and Spetses you can feel the beauty of these picturesque islands.

For a quiet destination you can also sail from Aegina to Dokos, an uninhabited place which will offer you unforgettable moments.

A second excellent sailing area is the Argolic Gulf from where you can visit the historical cities of Monemvasia and Nafplio –the first capital of Greece, an old city with neoclassic houses- and the ports of Leonidio, Kiparissi and Porto Heli.

Saronic Gulf and the eastern Peloponnese are much less affected by the strong winds of the Aegean Sea, usually you don't even feel the Meltemi wind (north east, around 4 Beaufort). At the east coast of the Peloponnese however some unexpected gusts may occur sometimes from 6 to 7 Beaufort.

The Ionian Sea

The Ionian Islands - also known in Greece as the 'Eptanisa' (Seven Islands) - are seven main islands located on the western side of mainland Greece. This group of islands includes many smaller islands, but the basic ones are the following: Corfu, Paxoi/Antipaxoi, Lefkas, Ithaca, Kefalonia, Zakynthos (Zante), islands which are off the west coast of Greece in the Ionian Sea. The seventh island, Kythira, is off the southern tip of the Peloponnese, the southern part of the Greek mainland and is included in the region of Attica. Ionian is not the Greece of the popular travel brochure but a shaded green country, sheltering red tiled Latin houses, an eccentric collection of Italian and French architecture and English tastes.

The wind and sailing conditions in the Ionian Sea are ideal and predictable. From May to September the wind blows from North-West at Force 2-5. In Spring and Autumn the wind is less strong and blows usually from South-West. It arrives around noon, blows between force 3 to 6 (10 to 25 knots) and dies down at sunset. There may be strong gusts on the leeward side due to the high land (e.g Eastern side of Ithaca and Zakynthos).

The Dodecanese which means 'the Twelve Islands' in Greek are located East of the Cyclades, West of the Turkish coast. They are a group of 12 larger islands (Tilos, Symi, Samos, Rhodes, Patmos, Nissiros, Leros, Lipsi, Arkii & Fourni, Kos, Kastelorizo, Karpathos & Kasos, Kalymnos, Icaria, Astypalea) plus 150 smaller in the Aegean Sea, of which 26 are inhabited. They have a rich history, and many of even the smallest inhabited islands boast dozens of Byzantine churches and medieval castles. The largest island is Rhodes, which is also the most popular tourist destination because the sun is shining 300 days annually and offers endless beaches for travelers. Kos is the second most popular island which is near to the Turkish peninsula of Bodrum. There are several unspoilt villages and great anchorage places. In the summer months (June to September inclusive), the prevailing wind is the "Meltemi" coming from the NW-W like in the Cyclades islands and the open Aegean Sea. It begins to blow in mid June, powers-up from end July to early September and weakens off in October. The usual force of the North winds is 4-6 in Beaufort scale and may on occasion reach force 7 or more rarely 8.

Volos, Skiathos, Northern Sporades

The Northern Sporades are an archipelago along the east coast of Greece, northeast of the island of Evia, in the Aegean Sea. They consist of 24 islands and the term "Sporades" refers mainly to these islands: Skopelos, Skyros, Alonissos, Skiathos, Kyra Panagia, Peristera, Gioura, Skantzoura, Piperi, Tsougria. They are found not only in the bigger and smaller islands, but in the North coast of Evia as well and inside the Pagassitikos Gulf (Volos) and the East coast of Thessaly mainland.

The first four islands (Skopelos, Skyros, Alonissos and Skiathos) are the greenest islands in Greece and have the most beautiful beaches (such as Koukounaries and Lalaria in Skiathos), as well as many bays, scenic coves and bright white churches. The wind's force in Beaufort scale is 3-5 and may rarely reach Force 7. As it happens in the open Aegean Sea winds begin in late June, blow stronger in July and August, and fade out in the middle of September. On the other hand, a kind of "funnelled" East winds at the channels of Trikeri and Orei (SW of Skiathos isle close to the N part of Evia) shall be taken into consideration. Inside the gulf of Volos (Pagasitikos Gulf), the "rule" is NW winds at Force 2

The Cyclades

The Cyclades (from the Greek word for 'rings' or 'circles') is the central group of islands in the Aegean, so named because of the way they seem to surround Delos, the ancient centre of trade and worship. This group of islands offers a landscape of naked rocks, white washed houses against crystal-clear water and a bright sky.

Sailing in Cyclades you can visit the following main areas:

Kea, Kithnos, Syros, Andros, Tinos, Mykonos, Delos and Rinia (Northern Cyclades), Serifos, Sifnos, Antiparos, Paros, Naxos (Middle Cyclades), Donoussa, Iraklia, Schinoussa, Koufonissia, Amorgos and Levitha (Small Cyclades) and Milos, Kimolos, Folegandros, Sikinos, Ios, Thira (Santorini) and Anafi (Southern Cyclades).

The prevailing wind in the summer is the "Meltemi", which blows from the North / North West. It begins in June, blows stronger in July and August at Force 5-6 in Beaufort scale and may occasionally reach Force 8-9. It may blow for 1-3 days or it may sometimes blow for 2 weeks at a time.

Bareboats

General Information for Bareboat Charters

The yachts are fully equipped, maintained by a group of specialists and meet all high safety and comfort standards of Sun Yachting company.

Every year our yachts are inspected by the Hellenic Register of Shipping and a new certificate of inspection is issued. Our yachts are equipped with all the safety equipment required such as life rafts, dinghies, life jackets, life belts etc. and all the essential navigation equipment as GPS, VHF's, echo sounders, log, wind, speed instruments etc. We provide all Bareboats with clean laundry, comprehensive sea charts and Greek water pilots. All yachts are delivered to the charterers in excellent technical condition, with full fuel and water tanks.

All tanks have to be filled up at the expenses of the charterer at the time of return. According to Greek Law, an official charter agreement must be signed by both the charterer and the broker. A crew list stating the passport or ID numbers of the members must be onboard. If the crew does not have enough sailing experience or a sailing license, then a skipper is available for hire.

All yachts are risk insured with a deductible insurance policy, as a guarantee, paid to the broker upon embarkation. When a charter boat is returned without damages or lost items, the total amount of the guarantee is refunded.

Every yacht is delivered and returned with the aid of an inventory check list. The inventory list and an acceptance form must be signed by the charterer. Any defective or missing items should be mentioned on the inventory list and the acceptance form, before clients' departure.

Embarkation time is 17:00 pm and disembarkation time is 09:00 am. The yacht should be returned to the base, the afternoon before the end of the charter and check-out next morning.

Bareboat charters start from one of the following marinas:

Marina Alimos (Athens), Marina Lavrion, Marina Lefkas, Marina Gouvia (Corfu), Marina Paroikia (Paros), Marina Tourlos (Mykonos), Marina Skiathos, Marina Volos, Marina Kos, Marina Mandraki (Rhodes).
